FRENCH CAREGIVERS WHO ARE SAVING LIVES ARE URGED BY FEW NEIGHBORS TO MOVE AWAY

SOME ARE UNDER PRESSURE AND IN TEARS

Paris, Washington DC, 30.03.2020, 01:25 Time

USPA NEWS - Here is the message that certain caregivers (caregiver, nurses) received on the door of their home, from certain neighbors, "Thank you for going to live elsewhere": caregivers considered as plague victims by their neighbors ... Those the same, show their concern for their health, ask them not to touch anything in the common areas, or even to move. These kind of messages are terrifyingly violent, and all the more intense since the caregivers who are dedicated to saving lives in hospitals and places of medical care and retirement home center, are already subjected to strong pressure, and excessive fatigue .... in a COVID-19 pandemic context Even, the French Prime Minister, Edouard Philippe criticized "these outrageous words from a number of people who are worried about nurses, caregivers or doctors being on the landing next to or below their homes because they would be exposed to the virus more than others. " The head of the government denounces this outrageous attitude of a part of the French who have deposited "scandalous" notes against the carers. Still Eiffel Tower is lightening as a national tribute every single evening at 8:pm, as ell as the national applause at there balconies

SOME NEIGHBORS ASK SOME NURSES TO MOVE AWAY KNOWING THEY ARE APPLAUDED EVERY EVENING AT 8: PM----------"I called the hospital to tell them that I had two co-owners who were totally opposed to his presence in the building. " "When I saw her give me the keys, I realized that she was being put outside and that it was not possible, that it was a shame. »Source: LeNouvelObs He deplored the "dark part" that can resurface during such a health crisis, in spite of those who applaud them in a national show, whistling applause and song of the national anthem every evening at 8 pm. The Eiffel Tower being also lightening with the message MERCI (THANK YOU) addressing the medical teams, every evening at 8 p.m. The bells of the churches of France also ring at 7:30 p.m. all applauses to encourage these new "White Heroes" as the President of the Republic called them. All of this contrasts with the humiliations of caregivers whose cars have been broken to steal masks or leave shameful messages asking them not to live here anymore, because "are likely to contaminate their proximity to COVID-19 patients". This shameful contradictory attitude towards those who save lives, under tension, tears, humiliations and exhaustion of fatigue in the face of saturated hospitals. This translates to psycho who seems to be settling in with some in France, where even some have stolen masks and sold on the Black market, when the medical teams are in dire need of it, is scandalous and could not be excused or forgiven.To "facilitate the daily life" of nursing staff, the Prime Minister also announced that "the reception of children in nurseries, schools and colleges" will remain open. Taxis and hotel rooms are also "available to them," he said.

IN PARIS A NURSE MUST RETURN HER KEYS TO THE LANDLORD----------
This incident is not an isolated case. In Paris, residents of a building in the 20th arrondissement opposed the move of a nurse, who should nevertheless be housed in an empty apartment near the Tenon hospital. The owner, who had taken care to warn the neighbors, received alarmed messages: “We do not wish to take this risk for our family and the rest of the inhabitants. He had to ask the nurse to leave, he tells France-Inter: "I called the hospital to tell them that I had two co-owners who were totally opposed to his presence in the building. " "When I saw her give me the keys, I realized that she was being put outside and that it was not possible, that it was a shame. »Source: LeNouvelObs
